Sosol and Sea: Reconciling Ethics with Aesthetics

Launched in 2017, Sosol and Sea is a playful, handcrafted and ethically minded jewelry line conceived by Belgian designer Solange Lecomte.

With a background in fashion design -and a strong interest in sustainable ways of developing products- Lecomte understood that the process of jewelry making could be committed and socially aware, adding an important political dimension to her work.

Searching for fairer ways to produce her poetic, colorful and feminine pieces, she came across a specialized workshop in Tunis where socially vulnerable women reintegrate society through artisanship, and learning the production of manufactured goods. This was a unique opportunity for the Belgian designer to add depth and commitment to her practice, as well as re-place the human being at the center of her work.

Lecomte's inspirations are close to nature and its peaceful quality. Seduced by the depths of the sea and the adventurous nature of scuba diving, the Belgian finds comfort and relaxation by the ocean, a key source of inspiration within her jewels. Her pieces are timeless and appeal to women who value their own freedom and personal style first.

With references to the fascinating cultures of the Pacific Islands, Northern Africa and the lush nature of tropical settings, Lecomte's jewels underline a bohemian and sensual approach toward life. Semi-precious stones, leather, shells, glass and corals are some of the recurring elements one finds in her pieces, often graphic and eclectic at once.

Envisaged like a haven for cherished treasures, Sosol and Sea invites us to escape through an evocative style of jewelry, focusing on high-quality materials and meticulous craftsmanship.
